

In Order to Survive it put it on Private

By Justin Stewart

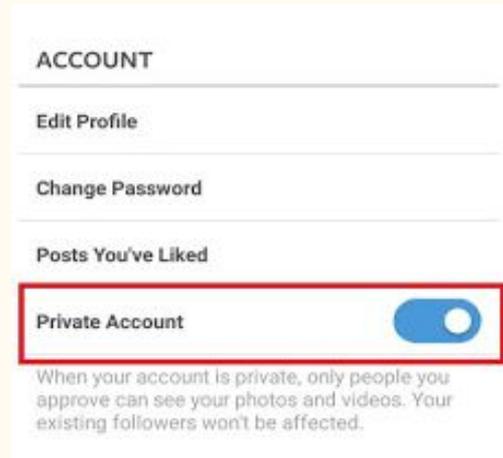

Pg 1

Once upon a time there was a kid, who just wanted to be like everyone else at his junior high school, so he decided to get a social media account. He couldn't wait to display his cherished memories to everyone who followed him.

Pg 2

The next day at school he tried desperately to get everyone to follow his new account. All of his classmates at school were getting annoyed, he wouldn't leave any of them alone. (But what he didn't know was that you need to put your account on private.)

Pg 3

His first picture he shared of his account was a photo taken when he and his friends went to the waterpark last summer. He could not believe that he had so many likes on his photo, but there was one really negative comment by a stranger that bothered him deeply.

Pg 4

He had no idea what to do. He was really irritated by the comment but he didn't think that other people would care about his problems so he decided to keep his issues to himself. (What he should have done was tell a parent, guardian or even the police.

Pg 5

The following day at school was a nightmare. Everyone started making fun of him because of that one inconsiderate person who made the mean comment on his page. Nobody had ever bullied him in his life.

Pg 6

His whole personality changed after he started getting bullied. He started getting skinnier and skinnier because he was no longer eating on a regular basis and he barely get any sleep at night because he started to get frequent nightmares.

Pg 7

He finally decided to put his account on private, delete the mean comment and block the person who made fun of him. He realized that it doesn't matter how many followers you have if you don't even know them.
